

no more than any other contrabrand by the smugglers.

Waterfront men declare there are perhaps 40 boats used in this illicit trade today on the Pacific coast. Mostly Americans and Italians are engaged in the work. Some families for generations have engaged in smuggling.

Contrabrand Chinese are a real menace to the country. They are not inspected by physicians, as are other immigrants, thus there is ever an opportunity for the spread of all sorts of contagious diseases. The contrabrand Chinamen will go to work in laundries or other places where disease is easily spread, not only among the Chinese themselves, but among every inhabitant of the city in which they are hidden away.
